WELCOME

Hello, creative!

Welcome to Color Formula — my monthly collection of color palettes and background recipes created with Lindy's sprays and Magicals.

Every palette in this guide was tested in my own mixed media experiments and built around one thing I love most — expressive layered backgrounds full of movement, texture, and unexpected color reactions.

Use these formulas as a starting point: change the colors, add more contrast, or let water create its own magic.

Lindy's products are made for experimentation, and some of the best effects happen when you stop trying to control every drop.

I hope this guide inspires you to play, test, and discover new combinations in your own style.

Happy creating!

5 Tips for Lindy's Sprays

These are the tips I wish I knew when I first picked up a Lindy's spray.

01

Light first, dark on top

Start with your lightest sprays first, then slowly build darker colors on top. It's much easier to deepen a background later than to fix one that became too dark too quickly.

02

Dry between layers

Try not to rush into the next layer while everything is still wet. A quick heat dry helps keep the colors cleaner and brighter and prevents muddy backgrounds.

03

Water is your best tool

Mist a little water onto wet spray and just watch what happens. Blooms, soft transitions, texture, movement — this is where Lindy's really starts to shine.

04

Lift color for texture

Press a dry or slightly damp wipe onto your wet background and remove some of the color. Some of the best textures happen completely by accident.

05

Missing a color? Use something close

Don't worry if you don't have the exact shade from the list. Just grab the closest color in your collection — Lindy's sprays usually work beautifully together.
